INTRODUCTION

UPDATE 76 featured the personal selections of 55 special librarians who met on June 7, 1976, at the Special Libraries Association annual meeting in Denver, to display and discuss current reference and acquisition tools in the social sciences. The social sciences were divided into 28 subject areas to allow as much specificity as our space allowed. The librarians prepared the bibliographic lists that follow to serve as a record of the works selected for this event.

Participants were asked to choose about 25 tools for each topic. They were to concentrate on those works found especially useful for reference and acquisition purposes. For the most part the citations represent works published since 1970 and new editions of important earlier works. As the personal selections of the Update 76 participants, the listed works do not represent any particular endorsement on the part of the compilers' organizations or the Special Libraries Association.

The bibliographic information is stated here as it was supplied by the participants; a minimum of editing was done. It is therefore not surprising to find that some titles appear in several subject areas. The topics of general reference and urban affairs were included to round out the coverage by including those works too general for specific topics.

I wish to express my gratitude to the librarians who volunteered their time and energy to select and share with their colleagues their choices of significant reference and acquisition tools. Thanks also goes to the publishers who willingly gave their publications to the Update; to Louise Lusignan for her assistance and moral support; to Anne Hidding who served as my Denver contact and made many arrangements at the conference as well as serving as the recipient of the mail from the publishers; to Robert Zich and Dottie Pollet for their advice; to Nancy Pitcher for her typing and support; and to the many others who offered their encouragement, energy and hard work to make the idea a reality. To all of you, my most heartfelt thanks.
